Bat the Rat

Through weary years we swatted flies, which swatted us-'twas tit for tat - and now we're asked to nobly rise, like armored knights, and bat the rat. We swatted flies at your behest, oh, tireless sanitation crank; we drove the critters galley west, and smote them hip and thigh and flank. And ever, in our sad career, one hope was burning in our breast; "the autumn time will soon be here," we murmured, "and we'll then have rest. Then we may lay our swatters down we poor exhausted, fly-specked men, and idly navigate the town, Julius Rath Claims to Have Walked play the slot machines again." But now the autumn time is come, the flies are mostly lying flat, by chilly evenings rendered numb-and we must start to bat

Washington Asylum Hospital, and was prevented from sending her to the Government Hospital for the Insane only by the intervention of a friend, the wife asserts. Several times she has invited him to return to their home, she avers, but has been met with a refusal, accompanied by the "stereotyped excuse of being afraid of her."

Through Attorney Robert E. Mattingly, the wife asks that the husband's suit be dismissed and maintenance be allowed her and the children.

STYLE SHOW TO EXHIBIT

Edward B. McLean.

Christian Dominique Hemmick will exhibit a velvet coat-suit designed by herself and hand-painted by John S. Neligh of the Neighborhood House at the style show and dansant at Rauscher's during afternoons and evenings of October 26, 27 and 28, for the benefit of the Red Cross war relief fund.

This costume attracted much attention when it was first worn by Mrs. Hemmick. It is made of soft chiffon velvet in an ethereal-blue tone, and hand-painted with a design of grapes in purple shades. Another exhibition designed by Mrs

Anna Pavlowa, the Russian dancer. A Surgical Shirt.

A surgical shirt, designed by a prominent Washington society woman active in Red Cross work, will also be a style show attraction The shirt, which has been designed for hospital use, is made of flannel, with wide, loose sleeves, which are fastened by patent clasps, so that the garment may be opened readily for the binding of wounds and easily reclosed.

It is intended that a number of these shirts will be made by the Red Cross Helpers, a group of Washington women of prominence, who gather at St. John's P. E. Church, and that they will be sent to the Red Cross nurses in the European war field.

war field.

Preston Gibson, J. H. de Sibour and Edward B. McLean, authorities on the modern ballroom dansant, have consented to act as judges for dance competitions, which will be a feature each afternoon and evening of the style show and dansant.

Miss Edith Spofford, granddaughter of A. R. Spofford, former librarian at the Congressional Library, with Ben Crampton, will illustrate the latest baliroom steps.

Miss.Ruth Parker and Myron Parker, ir., well known exponents of the modern dances for society benefits, will contribute some new dances. Miss Effle Baker and Miss Midfred Anderson, both classical dancers, will give exhibitions in coefurate.
